

Industrial Organization: Turkish Association for Seismic Isolation (TASI), Turkey

Institution Representative: Eren Kalafat

Short Description of the Organization:

Turkish Association for Seismic Isolation (TASI) has been founded in 2006. Among its local and international members there are manufacturers, engineering and architectural companies, contractors, academicians, and others who are interested in seismic isolation technologies.

The mission of TASI is to put effort for increasing the awareness and activities of seismic isolation technologies which is an effective way of saving lives and mitigating seismic damages to both structural and non-structural parts of buildings after devastating earthquakes, thus minimizing tangible and intangible losses at both micro- and macro-economic scales.

TASI is a member of ASSISi (Anti-Seismic Systems International Society) which is located in Italy. The ever increasing efforts of TASI includes being the local organizer of the ASSISi 10th World Conference on Seismic Isolation, Energy Dissipation and Active Vibration Control of Structures held in Istanbul in 2007 as well as many other important and reputable activities.
